

Dr. Janet Pak Memark, MD, MPH, FACP
District Health Director, Cobb & Douglas Public Health

Dr. Janet Pak Memark, MD, MPH, FACP, is the District Health Director for Cobb & Douglas Public Health (CDPH). She is responsible for overseeing the management of a diverse group of 29 public health programs including epidemiology, nursing, pharmacy, dental, communicable diseases, emergency preparedness, and environmental health.

Dr. Memark received her Master's in Public Health from the University of Miami Miller School of Medicine. She then continued on to receive her medical training. She is a board certified physician in Internal Medicine who trained at Loyola University Medical Center outside of Chicago.

She began her medical career as a general internist with the Department of Veteran's Affairs, caring for our nation's veterans in an academic setting that also involved the training of medical students and resident physicians.

She came to Georgia in 2010 to be closer to family and has been a resident of Cobb County since that time. She joined the WellStar Health System in 2013 as the Medical Director of Community Health, where she oversaw all the community health clinics and was involved in the community benefit activities of the health system. She then, joined the new Graduate Medical Education initiative for Kennestone as Associate Program Director for the new Internal Medicine Program. In October 2021 she was named Atlanta Business Chronicle's '2021 Women of Influence'.

Dr. Memark has a passion for advocacy for vulnerable populations, health disparities and access to healthcare. She has two school-aged children and enjoys hiking, exploring waterfalls, and other outdoor activities on her free time.
